

“Having a major cardiac center here makes a lifesaving difference for our patients.”

Margaret Ferrell, MD is the Director of Interventional Cardiology at Charlton, overseeing the Cardiac Cath Lab and performing cath and angioplasties.

Before coming to Southcoast, she was an interventional cardiologist at a major teaching hospital, Mass General in Boston.

Ongoing Commitment to Excellence

“The one thing that was clear to me from the moment I came to Southcoast was the pride that the employees have. This ongoing commitment to excellence is really unique. I think our cath lab is big enough to offer our patients great expertise yet small enough that each patient feels personally valued.

Care That's Second to None

“The technology, the staff, the facilities here are excellent. Quality means good outcomes and our data is excellent by all measures. We're able to offer complete heart care and our surgical team stands by for every procedure that we do. We feel confident that the care we can provide is second to none.”

Heart services at Southcoast.

High quality care. Highly satisfied patients.
